

Hello LSLPC Members,

The chemical treatment was done this morning except for the North Shores canal. I am trying to determine when the canal can be treated.

There would have been a potential fish kill in the canal due to lack of oxygen, NOT from the chemicals themselves. The chemicals would reduce the plant/algae oxygen production and with the heat and limited amount of water and very little movement/exchange of water, then the fish could suffocate.

I wanted to thank everyone for the outstanding cooperation from all SAD Members - there was literally no traffic on the lake today as requested. This gives the chemical treatment the very best possible chance for success. Thanks to all.

More information on the canal when I get it
